

The past school year has been a productive, and yet challenging one, for the Forum and its production partner, Elephant Rock Productions. First, ERP moved its production facilities from Chicago to Ashford, Connecticut. Secondly, we shuttled between Vermont, Crown Point, Indiana, and New Port Richey, Florida, to produce our new DVD, Connected Schools, produced with our own digital native Dr. Lynn Murray. Thirdly, we went back to Crown Point to capture a Credit Recovery Lab that uses a virtual curriculum to re-connect potential dropouts to school with a tough-love teaching and coaching team. Finally, this year we are publishing our first book, authored by high school principal Dr. Eric Ban, who has created the concept of the New American Research High School Network, committed to accelerating college and career readiness. Not a bad year of work for the talented Indiana-Connecticut-Vermont-Florida production team.

Best wishes for another successful year in our nation's public schools, where we all have learned to get better in spite of the madness around us!
